

August 2009

Year—12 Issue—138

Editor

MAHENDRA JAIN

Editor/Publisher is not responsible for views, data, figures etc. expressed in the articles by the authors.

—Editor

No part of this publication can be reproduced or transmitted in any form without the prior written permission from the publishers.

Edited, printed and published by Mahendra Jain for M/s. Pratiyogita Darpan, 2/11A, Swadeshi Bima Nagar, AGRA-2 and printed by him at Pratiyogita Darpan Printing Unit, 5 & 6, Bye pass Road, Agra.
Phone : 4053333, 2531101, 2530966
Fax : (0562) 4031570, 4053330
E-mail : publisher@pdgroup.in Website : www.pdgroup.in

Branch Office :

4845, Ansari Road,
Daryaganj, New Delhi-110 002
Phone : 23251844/66

In This Issue

Regulars

Editorial	667
Science and Technology	669
Latest General Knowledge	671
Inspiring Young Talents—(i) Topper : U.P.-CPMT 2009 (1st Position)—Rashmi Singh	675
(ii) Topper : Uttarakhand, PMT 2009 (1st Position)—Anjali Singh	677
Science Tips	679

Physics

Atomic Physics-VIII	682
Thermal Physics-III	688
Typical Model Paper	698
Typical Model Paper	703

Chemistry

Factors that Control Relative Strengths of Acids and Bases	709
Aromatic Hydroxy Compounds : Phenols	713
Typical Model Paper	723
Typical Model Paper	727

Zoology

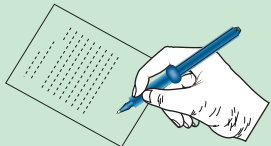

Gametogenesis	733
Phylum Chordata	738
Human Skeletal Muscles	743
Typical Model Paper	748
Typical Model Paper	751
Typical Model Paper	754

Botany

Edaphic Factors : Soil Composition and Formation	757
Fertilizers and Biofertilizers	760
General Characteristics of Basidiomycetes : Club Fungi	762
Typical Model Paper	766
Typical Model Paper	769

Other Features

Assertion and Reason Type Questions	772
True or False	775
Do You Know ?	778
CSV Quiz Contest No. 135	782
Correct Solution and Prize Winners of CSV Quiz No. 132	785
General Awareness	786
Mental Ability Test	788

Keep Always Ready for Examination

There is always a section of students which wants that the examination dates be postponed for sometime so that they may make a thorough revision of the whole course or complete the chapters which have been left unfinished. Behind this demand there is only one argument that they did not have enough time for proper preparations. On the other side, there is another section of examinees which is always ready to take their examination and wants that the examination may finish at the earliest. It does not look nice that the examinations may be postponed once a date has been fixed for them.

In our daily life also we find two sections of people—one section of the people seems to be having no time for anything, while the other section of the people has time for every useful thing. The people of this section never complain of having no time for anything. These people have time to complete all assignments such as, complete their studies, attend games, go to important meetings and also join important functions of their friends and relations etc. There are some people in this section who have to earn their living as well.

As opposed to this the people of the section one have only one complaint to make that they had no time. They even make their business a cause of great excuse and make it convenient to forget many things under their cover. If proper account is kept of work, they have done during the twenty four hours, it will be seen that they have hardly devoted two to three hours to serious work. It is no surprise if such persons are not successful in anything in their lives.

A student may lag behind in his preparations on account of his limitations or circumstances but in his heart of hearts he also wants to be one of those who are always ready to welcome the examinations. The examinee who is always ready to take the examination is apparently full of self confidence and as such is always full of hope and optimism. We believe that you also would like to make the best of your time and complete your course within the definite period of time and keep always ready to take the examination.

Some students try to avoid the examination while others welcome it. The former do not do regular study while the latter draw a time table and stick to it. For them things become easy and favourable and they welcome the examination. Those who succeed in life should do regular and continuous studies. Examinations give confidence and open the way for progress. This world is a drudgery to those who shirk, but a pleasure to those who work. But there should be a systematicness in your working to get the best results.

To make the best of time means that we do not waste our time in useless things and gossiping. Every examinee should first of all draw out his time table as to for how many hours he has to devote to his studies and also the timings of his studies. He should be clear in his mind that particular hours he must devote to his books and do nothing else during that period. Such students may have to face criticism of many types such as he does not talk to anybody, he tries to show himself, a studious man, he is very proud etc. but he has to ignore such things and follow his time table with full determination. Then and then alone will he be able to make himself ready to take the examination. Develop the habit of leaving your bed in the morning at a particular time and then sit for study for the period as fixed in your time table. This would do you two benefits—there would remain a continuity in your study and secondly you will be free from the tension which is the result of irregular study. One who makes regular studies keeps also some hours for extra study which makes him full of enthusiasm. Regular studies will do you one more good that you will get pleasure in doing constructive work and will never feel depressed.

The continuous study creates boredom which needs to be removed. For this the candidate must make a change. For example, after reading for sometime if one sits to write something he will see that boredom is released to a great extent. For recreation it seems to be more proper that we develop the habit of reducing to writing what we read. This makes what you read a part of your personality and you become exact in your expression. As has been rightly said, "Reading makes a man perfect and writing makes a man exact."

We want to emphasize that if we keep a constant eye on our time table we shall see that all our things are done in their own way and without resistance and then we will have no complaint of having no time. If we work regularly and with full devotion we will always be ready to take the examination and will never think of its postponement. This is a known fact that without proper tests no one gets perfect knowledge. So you should make up your mind to welcome examinations and as such be always ready for it. Also, do things systematically. Hotch-potch working is the result of hotch-potch of ideas. Systematise your ideas so as to acquire a system in your working and then your success is assured. That would give you confidence to go ahead and open the gates for progress.

